The Wisniak name refers to a cherry flavored liquor, often cherry flavored vodka. In Russian it can also mean cherry tree or cherry orchard.

A number of unrelated families took the name when the Czar required last names in the early 19th century.

Other similar names: Wisnia, Wishnia, Vishnia, Wisniak, Wishniak.

Theory of the Surname Origins:

1. There is a river located on the south west side of the present Poland flowing from the Russian Ukraine called Wiznia. (Easily found on a present day map.)

2. Wisnia (probably the original name) in Polish is pronounced "Wishnia" the "s" has an accent which make the "sh" sound. It means cherry. When the "k" is added to the end of the name it means the liquor made out of the cherry. This drink is easily found in eastern Europe and Israel.

3. (The far fetched version) Jews were expelled from Spain in 1492 by the Catholic Kings, they migrated to several countries like Turkey, Yugoslavia, North Africa et cetera. These Jews are called "Sefardies" and they still speak some Spanish. Some of the had the surname "Cerezo" which means "Wisnia." The assumption is that some of them migrated to eastern Europe and changed their surname to Wisnia.

Hi Kathleen - I got your e-mail and I wish I could be of more help.....unfortunately both Anna & Peter have "unknown" listed for both their parents. We have Poland listed as their birthplaces and it looks like Peter was a laborer for C.N.W. RR (I'm assuming Railroad :>)

Other than that - there's not much else to share with you - Anna's funeral cost a total of $790.00.

I wish I could give you more and I wish you luck in your search.

MARAJDA

To: Kathleen Daniels <kard13@juno.com> who wrote:
I ... wondered if you had ever come across the name "MARAJDA" in your investigations? My husband's grandmother was an Anna Marajda, and she married a Peter Wisniak. He spoke Russian and Polish, she only Polish. As of 1990, according to the best data available (the Słownik nazwisk współcześnie w Polsce używanych, "Directory of Surnames in Current Use in Poland," which covers about 94% of the population of Poland), there were 23 Polish citizens named MARAJDA. Two of them lived somewhere in the province of Sieradz, the rest lived in the province of Lodz. Unfortunately I don't have access to further details such as first names or addresses, what I've given here is all I have. But perhaps it will help you focus your research on the Lodz area, since the odds are that's the most likely area in which to find relatives.
As for the derivation or meaning of this name, I'm afraid none of my sources give any information at all. This makes me suspect the name is not Polish in origin. But I couldn't find anything on it in my German, Lithuanian, or Ukrainian sources, either. So I'm at a loss to suggest what language it came from, let alone what it means. Most Polish names beginning with Mar- come either from short forms of the first name Marek, "Mark," or from the noun mara, "phantom, nightmare." There's also a verb marac that means "to dirty, smear, soil." But I can think of no plausible way for MARAJDA to come from any of those roots.
